Hundreds Of Airplanes Being Used By Reds—Raiders Near Helsinki

HELSINKI, March 5.—Under cover of great swarms of airplanes which kept the small Finnish air force grounded, Red army divisions today struggled slowly from three directions through the mine-studded streets of Viborg.

Finnish land forces were reported holding out in most of the terrain around the port, while heavy Russian losses were reported from mine blasts in the ruined city.

Attempt Flanking Move
Unable to take the Viborg area with the speed they had hoped for, the Russians attempted a wide flanking movement over the ice of Viborg Bay as far west as 20 miles to Fredrikshamn (Hamina), but the attempt was beaten off by Finnish artillery.

Some of the hundreds of airplanes being used by the Russians were reported nearly as far as Helsinki, resulting in another ten-minute warning in the capital at 9:15 a. m. No anti-aircraft guns went into action.

After weeks of slow work, the Finns today reportedly completed encirclement of the 16th Russian division of some 20,000 men near Kitelee, north of Lake Ladoga.

Division Cut Off
Facing annihilation, the division long has been cut off from escape, but it was not until today that its encirclement was announced. The 16th is confronted by the same fate as a tank brigade wiped out in the same area, and other divisions cut to pieces in similar traps farther north.

Estimate Shenandoah Damage At $1,000,000

(International News Service)

SHENANDOAH, Pa., March 5.—With damage already estimated at $1,000,000, Shenandoah residents were warned today that a series of cave-ins which yesterday cracked the walls of homes and business places over a 16-block area might continue intermittently for at least two weeks and probably for six months.

Miraculously, no one was killed or injured by the subsidence, despite the fact that nearly 4,000 persons fled their beds when houses suddenly began rocking in a "terrible rumbling" as if from an earthquake. Borough and state authorities closed all public buildings where cracks an inch to a foot wide split the walls, as home-owners were warned to sleep with windows opened so that they might be awakened by the slightest disturbance heralding a new shifting of the mine-burrowed sub-strata beneath the community.

A town meeting was called for tonight for the purpose of determining what action individual property owners and the borough itself shall take in recovering damages for the subsidence.

Democratic Primary Promises Bitter Battle

HARRISBURG, March 5.—Rekindling of the bitter Democratic primary feud of 1938 loomed today as Pennsylvania's Democrats, heedless of President Roosevelt's plea for harmony, girded for a factional contest that threatened their 72 presidential electoral votes.

In what appeared to be merely a continuation of the primary battle of two years ago, Democrats opposed to renomination of U. S. Senator Joseph F. Guffey entered Walter A. Jones, Pittsburgh financier and chairman of the Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission, as his opponent in the April 23 primary.

Roosevelt On Ballot
Jones' backers, headed by Democratic State Chairman David L. Lawrence and other anti-Guffeyites, also placed the name of President Roosevelt on the preferential primary ballot.

With Guffey a staunch 100 per cent New Dealer and Jones a close friend of the President, it was expected the national administration would maintain a hands-off policy after having found itself unable to prevent the internecine squabble.

LONDON, March 5.—Total British mercantile tonnage sunk by enemy action since the European war began amounts approximately to 620,000 tons, it was announced officially today.

Two-thirds of these shipping losses have been replaced by new construction and by ships captured from Germany, thereby leaving a net loss of one-third of the actual sinkings, a government statement said.

German shipping losses resulting from sinking and captures to date total approximately 271,000 tons, representing 22 ships captured by the allies and 25 scuttled by their crews, according to the British figures.

Senate Battle On Hatch Bill Is Impending

By EDWARD E. LOCKETT

WASHINGTON, March 5.—The new Hatch "clean politics" bill thrust a political battle before the senate today as opponents offered a series of crippling amendments.

Denounced as a potential death blow to the Democrats in the 1940 campaigns and hailed as the harbinger of cleaner elections, the legislation faced a doubtful fate.

Jeopardizes Act
The struggle ahead threatened not only pending extensions limiting political activity of state employees paid with federal funds, but jeopardized the original act dealing with federal workers.

Senator Carl Hatch (D) New Mexico led the fight for adoption of his new measure, and Senator Sherman Minton (D) Indiana, headed forces demanding rejection.

Senator Miller (D) Arkansas offered the decisive amendment of the Hatch bill scrap. His proposal would bill from the old act and the new bill sections barring voluntary participation in political campaigns by federal employees and by state workers paid with federal funds.

"What kind of a country is this, if a man can't argue about politics with his friends no matter what the source of his pay check?" he said.

Hatch predicted that if adopted, the Miller amendment would "cost the Democratic party the 1940 elections." He added:

"All the votes that government workers and state workers paid with federal funds could muster wouldn't offset the ballots the party would lose."

Detroit Shocked By Indictments

Fifty-One Persons Charged With Conspiracy On Gambling And Vice

SHERIFF, PROSECUTOR ARE UNDER ARREST

(International News Service)

DETROIT, March 5.—Already stunned by weeks of rapid-fire allegations of graft and corruption among high-placed civic officials, Detroit, county and state citizenry today was further shocked by the mass indictment of 51 persons on charges of conspiracy to permit operation of disorderly houses, a midnight raid on grand jury headquarters and the arrest of two prominent individuals.

Shortly before dawn Circuit Court Judge Homer Ferguson, one-man grand jury investigating gambling and alleged police corruption in Wayne County, issued warrants for the arrest of Sheriff Thomas C. Wilcox and Undersheriff Bernard E. McGrath.

Arrests Made
He then routed Coroner Albert A. Hughes, the only official empowered to arrest the sheriff, who placed Wilcox and McGrath under arrest and lodged them in the county jail.

Also named in the indictments were Wayne County Prosecutor Duncan C. McGree, his chief investigator, Harry Colburn; Grosse Pointe Park President Alfred J. Garska, and Carl Stachler, chief clerk of the sheriff's office.

Judge Ferguson refused to name the other persons indicted until their arrest. Several squads of detectives and state police were immediately dispatched to round up those indicted.

Institution of removal proceedings against Wilcox were indicated.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—President Roosevelt will be asked by congressional fiscal leaders to abandon his suggestion that Congress levy $460,000,000 in new taxes it was learned today.

The information that Congress is almost solidly against tax legislation in a campaign year is expected to be carried to the president within the next few days.

Congressional leaders have expressed the opinion there will be no tax bill, and they hope that the president will agree. They do not want him to castigate congress for failure to enact taxes to aid him in his plan to keep the 1941 deficit below $2,000,000,000.

Even though leaders delayed tax action to await March 15 income tax returns, they now hold that the course of business is made unpredictable by troubled world conditions and that tax legislation ought to be abandoned regardless of what the tax returns show.

Big Loss In Storm On East Coast

Power Lines Are Hard Hit

Wires Snap Under Weight Of Ice—Huge Number Of Trees Fall

TREE DAMAGE IN N. Y. PARKS $700,000

(International News Service)
Repair crews struggled in the Atlantic seaboard states today to restore communication and power lines which were broken by one of the most destructive sleet and ice storms in recent years.
The damage was greater in many communities than that wrought by the September hurricane of 1938, officials of utility companies declared.
In scores of communities the scene of destruction was the same. Hundreds of electric and telephone wires snapped under the weight of the heavy ice which sheathed them to a depth of as much as two inches. Trees in forests, parks and orchards snapped and fell to the ground as the weight of the glistening ice became too much for them to bear.
Fire alarm systems in many communities in New York and New Jersey and in New England were paralyzed by the disruption of power lines. Householders were warned by radio to use telephones to report fires.
Scores of factories and schools were closed, the former because of lack of power and the latter because of the fear that children might be harmed by the fallen power lines or by falls on the ice-coated streets.
The damage was estimated in the hundreds of thousands. Huge waves whipped up by the northeasterly wind pounded the Atlantic coast from New Jersey to Maine, adding to the destruction.
About 1,000 of the 2,000 fire alarm boxes in the Bronx were put out of order. Emergency forces of police and firemen were stationed at the boxes to relay fire alarms.
The damage to trees alone in New York City parks was estimated officially at about $600,000 to $700,000.
The two-day rain was estimated to have added some 15 billion gallons of water to the city's depleted reservoirs, considerably alleviating the current shortage.
Another bright spot was the comparatively light report of pedestrian and automobile accidents.
Some 5,000 homes in Westchester county were darkened by broken power lines which also paralyzed oil heating systems.

Governor At Scene
A series of conferences, presided over by Governor Arthur H. James, who sped to the scene from Harrisburg, failed to disclose any conclusive evidence that recent mining operations had "knocked the props" from under the earth's crust, and laid the surface stratum open to the erosion caused by recent heavy rains.
Mining experts, however, apparently were agreed that one of these two things happened:
1. A "barrier pillar" had eroded and slowly disintegrated because of the heavy rains, a barrier pillar is a section left untouched by miners 1,000 feet beneath the surface as a foundation support of surface property.
2. Main barriers, weakened by improper mining methods, were tunneled through, collapsing with the erosion effect of the rains.
It was Deputy Secretary of Mines Joseph Walsh who predicted—and so informed Governor James—that the settlements might go on for six months.
May Evacuate Families
Should today's investigation raise the possibility of another sharp collapse of the earth's surface, it was understood state and borough authorities contemplated evacuation of families from the stricken area.
The borough's 22,000 residents remained comparatively calm, despite the ordeal through which many of them passed. They were without water for 10 hours and without gas for 15 hours. Schools were closed, and borough and state motor police roped off the affected areas. Volunteer patrols guarded against fires.
The rumblings which forced thousands from their homes into the streets began about 2 o'clock yesterday morning and ended about noon. Some buildings settled as much as 20 inches, while cracks several feet deep appeared on the streets. Breaks were seen in the walls of a new borough post office and a two-foot crack split the walls of the junior high school.

Finnish flag still floated bravely over Viborg castle—proof that grim Finnish "suicide squads" have not yet exhausted their positions. (The London Daily Herald reported from Stockholm that Viborg has been transformed by its defenders into a huge death trap in preparation for the moment that it falls to the Russians. Sappers have mined every bridge and road in the city, the dispatch said, and nearly every ruined house conceals a "booby trap" ready to spread death among the Russians.)
Fierce Fighting
Fighting was reported particularly fierce along the western half of the Mannerheim line from the Viborg sector to Vuoksa Lake.
Finnish authorities claimed that major Soviet attempts to cross the ice of Viborg Bay and outflank the Viborg defenses had proved unsuccessful as a result of Finnish artillery barrages which smashed the ice and drowned entire companies by advancing Russians.
Meanwhile, it appeared that public opinion in Helsinki now is beginning to favor a "demand" that the western European powers provide direct military aid for Finland as soon as possible.
Following last night's snow fall that blanketed the region around Helsinki—marking commencement of the march shows that are expected to aid Finland's cause—thick clouds were reported over the Baltic and blizzards were raging in many sections of the country.
The Russians launched desperate efforts to break through the Carelian Isthmus defenses before the weather once more halts their mechanized war machine.
Their attempts to outflank the western wing of the Mannerheim line by crossing the ice of Viborg Bay are extending 40 miles westward along the southern Finnish coast. Finnish patrols are being rushed to meet the new Soviet attacks.
Meanwhile, the Finns claimed to have captured Umanen north of Lake Ladoga and to have reestablished contact with their artillery batteries on the island of Mantta-Finland's "Alcazar"—where the Finnish garrison has been isolated by Russian troops for several weeks.

not let the "feeders" get empty on the mild days, because it is during this month that birdlife finds it hard to secure food. So the peoples kindness and thoughtfulness in feeding the birds should at least be continued until the first of April.

The Parent Problem

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

HELPING TO IMPROVE HIS WRITING

I AM WRITING this article in script. I don't know whether you could read it or not. I infer no reflection on your ability to read; rather, upon the way I write. But I really can write better when I try, and so could most children if they really cared to do so. But some children do have considerable difficulty at writing.

It is very easy to say that we need have little concern about our child's penmanship since he eventually may use a typewriter. But we should not overlook the fact that this child will have to do an enormous amount of writing by hand before he graduates from high school. It rarely occurs to us that his grade on a written paper is greatly influenced by the quality of his penmanship. If the writing is neat and legible, the mark will be higher than if slovenly and hard to read. When the teacher grades an unattractive paper which she reads with difficulty, she does not feel very generous. Some experiments have been made on marks by college professors. As you would guess, the same paper written poorly was graded higher when written well, and still higher when typed.

Many children are taught by the so-called free hand or muscular movement penmanship. Much may be said for this system in case the child succeeds by it. But a good many children don't. What they need to learn to do is to write so it will look well and be legible, regardless of the way they choose to write. This conclusion I have arrived at, in spite of the fact that I am co-author of the New York City Penmanship Scale, based on muscular movement penmanship, which was published some years ago and which for many years was the official penmanship scale for the elementary grades of that city.

If your child is a miserable writer and wants to improve, here is a simple, practical way you can help him.

Write on a heavy paper or cardboard slip a model. Several publishers have such writing slips available if you prefer to buy them. Have the child put the slip at the top of his sheet of ruled paper. As soon as he has made one copy, have him blot it and slide the slip down the page to cover the line he wrote, immediately above the line he will write next. Induce the child to write slowly and carefully. It worked well with one of my children who was a miserable writer.

A very poor writer will be helped if the writing sheet and the slips are so ruled as to guide him in the three different heights of the non-capital letters.

Furthermore, your child, above the fifth or sixth grade, might profitably choose to adopt "manuscript writing" or devise a kind of print-script of his own. Let him aim merely at neatness and legibility.

Solving Parent Problems

Q. What is a good way to break up an undesirable close friendship between your child and another youth?

A. Avoid criticizing the other youth. Be courteous and cordial, welcoming him or her to your home. Also attract a number of other youths there, hoping your child will profit from the self-revealing comparisons.

THEY SHOOT 'EM THERE

From south of the border, down Mexico way, where they don't bother building many strong jails because criminals don't need to be locked up after the firing squad functions, came Ramon Carral recently. Americans are super-civilized softies, with big prisons and fine food, Ramon had learned. He broke the law coming into the U. S. A. illegally, and doubled in brass by shoplifting in a Santa Barbara store. "What of it?" mused Ramon last week, as languished in the city "tank" following his apprehension. "A nice cell, with maybe a radio and then . . . Officer Bradford, police photographer, stuck his head into the tank. "Everybody up—we're ready to shoot you now!" Ramon paled. He tottered out, stood in line with the rest. Bradford ducked behind a fearful instrument with a black hood. Ramon trembled. Came a roar and a bang—of flash-light powder. Ramon fainted.

Now Ramon doesn't shoplift any more. Deported, to his extreme delight, he's back in Mexico. There may be something profound in all this. Philosophers and psychologists and penologists have long pondered crime control, without sure solution. Here is a case of partial cure, at least, because a word of American slang, as American slang would express it, "slayed" Ramon. Possibly he hasn't been shocked into the paths of rectitude down Mexico way—but he'll never bother the United States cops again. Ramon said so himself, with such feeling that he can hardly be disbelieved.

Two motorists met on one of those narrow one-way bridges which may still be found here and there. Both stopped and each waited for the other to move. Finally, one shouted: "Get off the bridge! I never back up for any fool!"

"I always do," replied the other cheerfully as he reversed his machine and backed out.

HINTS AND DINTS

Sun sets tonight 5:55. Sun rises tomorrow 6:27.

Man attacked by two footpads fights desperately. They finally overpower him and rob him, finding only thirty cents.

First footpad says: "My gracious man, if you fight that way to save thirty cents what would you do if you had a dollar?"

Victim: "I don't care for the thirty cents, but I didn't want my financial condition exposed."

The Boss: "Mose, did you hear the political speech?"

Mose (colored): "Yessuh, dat was a mighty smart man. I spects to vote fur dat man."

The Boss: "What was his name and his occupation?"

Mose: "Dat man didn't gib his name or what he does, but dat man suitin' do recommend himself mighty highly."

Passenger on street car holding his hands before him and about ten inches apart, says: "Conductor, will you please put your hand in my pocket and take out your fare?"

Conductor: "Certainly, but are your arms paralyzed?"

Passenger: "No, but I am going down town to get my wife a pair of shoes and I don't want to lose the measurement."

A Coaldean man had three vertebrae broken when a friend "playfully" slapped him on the back. We have always wished we carried a gun when those babies play around ourselves.

We know what will happen. He'll have to get his own breakfast.

Money is no sure cure for one's woes, an editorial asserts. However, one can at least have the satisfaction of worrying in comfort.

Zero in achievement: Working hard to make money to buy expensive pretties to show how much money you make.

Americanism: Boasting of hardy ancestors who conquered the wilderness on a diet of fried pork and cornbread; thinking people need charity if they eat the same fare now.

Communities have habits, too. In one town your friends smile and seem glad to see you; in another, any show of friendliness is regarded as "putting on."

Two Negro maids bought new hats. Liza was determined to wear hers to the Sunday service, but Mandy remonstrated, saying it was going to rain, and declared she'd save hers.

Liza, however, wore hers, and, as Mandy predicted, it did rain. As they left the church, Liza gathered up her skirts and pulled them over her head to protect it.

"Land's sake!" exclaimed Mandy. "It's perfectly outrageous for you to 'pose your anatomy damage' Liza, and on Sunday, too!"

"Maybe so," replied Liza, "but dat natomy am 40 years old while dis hat am brand new."

ORIGIN OF PARTY SYMBOLS

Most people have grown so accustomed to seeing the Democratic and Republican parties portrayed as a donkey and elephant, respectively, that they spend little time wondering why it is so. As a matter of fact there are few old timers living who remember the Thomas Nast cartoons which first portrayed the parties in such. The donkey was first used in this manner by Nast in 1870 and the elephant as a symbol of the Republican party was born four years later. They quickly caught the public fancy and have been so employed ever since.

Joe—Did you find a great deal of difference in your home town of today and of 20 years ago?

Uncle Ezra—Not much, except that the boys have progressed from the pickle-egg stage to settin' around on bread-boxes now.

"It is no such thing," answered Mrs. Snooks icily. "It is the day you promised to nail the leg on that old kitchen table."

There's a fish we read, which when attacked, emits a cloud of red ink. Golly, we didn't think the depression had gone that deep.

Cows, according to a science note do not give milk at high altitudes. Naturally not, they are too busy enjoying the view.

"Can you explain to me the difference," asked the teacher, "between caution and cowardice?"

Little Charlie, who observes life carefully for so youthful a person, answered: "Caution is when you're afraid, and cowardice is when the other fellow's afraid!"

What has become of the old-fashioned aristocrat who would not believe the doctor, when he was told that he had a quonam cold?

The Girl Next Door's father bought a new automobile a short time ago, and after trying it out for a week, took it back, complaining because he could not make it stop so the letters on the hub cap were right side up.

Then there's the young Canadian who has been shot at over a thousand times. No, he's not a war hero, just a hockey goalie.

Something will be on everybody's door step on April 2, the census taker, and he is going to ask you plenty of questions this year, so you better be studying your life history, financial condition, etc. In the case of the women, even their love-life will be listened to.

Readers' Questions Answered
Dear Miss Markel: I am soon to give a party. One of my friends has recently had a death in her family. I cannot decide whether or not I should send her an invitation. I should, however, like her to know that I want her there—Undecided.

Answer: It depends upon the woman herself and the relationship of the deceased. If she has taken off her mourning and is going about as usual, send her an invitation, which she may or may not accept. If the deceased was her husband, mother, father, sister or brother (someone in her immediate family), she is still, no doubt, in retirement and should not be annoyed with social invitations.

What's What At A Glance

La Guardia Can't Be Considered
Is Out As White House Candidate
Has Belonged To Too Many Parties

By CHARLES F. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON, March 5.—Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia of New York didn't need to announce, as he did at all, though he was. Oh, his name's been mentioned, but not seriously; not by any practical, competent politician.

Not that he hasn't been a first-class mayor. It generally is agreed that he's been a dandy. He was a fine congressman, too, from the standpoint of folk of a pretty radical tendency. He's a bang-up campaigner. He's a dynamic chap. He's as smart as a whip. He knows the country also. He was born in Arizona. He isn't the kind of New Yorker who never heard of anything west of Manhattan Island.

But what party would nominate him?

He served in Congress as a Republican and as a Socialist. He's been mayor as a Fusionist and an American Labor Party-ite. He never officially decorated himself with the Democratic label, but he's a New Dealer—if that makes him a Democrat. An ex-Republican or two (such as Agriculture Secretary Henry A. Wallace) have been suggested as Democratic possibilities, but Wallace's record wouldn't be a circumstance in comparison with Fiorello's variations.

Much Too Weak

To refer to Mayor La Guardia as a "liberal" is much too weak. "Liberal" is the word. At least he's a radical in theory. The fact that he served on Capitol Hill as a Socialist speaks for itself.

But Fiorello never made his radicalism ridiculous, as a lot of extreme "leftists" do. The reason undoubtedly is that he has tip-top ability and good taste and a sense of humor. He didn't even say that he isn't a presidential candidate in a way to imply that he BELIEVES he is. He dismissed the notion as a joke.

I'm not so sure that he's as radical as he used to be to pretend—and maybe used to consider himself. In Congress, where his radicalism (consisting of 1) wasn't numerous enough to signify, he preached it "ad lib." He ran for the House of Representatives as a Socialist because his district's Republicans, deeming him over-extreme, had eulogized him out a renomination. Whereupon the Socialists said, "All right, WE'LL nominate you." To which Fiorello, with almost incredible nerve, replied, "O. K. Go ahead." And still more incredibly, he won. He did it. I'll venture to assert, on the strength of his personality, not because he was a Socialist.

As mayor of New York, while still a radical, he's been no second edition of Stalin or Hitler or Mussolini. On the contrary, he's said that Hitler ought to be put in a "chamber of horrors." And it made Adolf so sore that he protested to the state department about it. That was wonderful advertising for Fiorello.

An Impossibility
All the same, as a presidential possibility, he's an IM-possibility. Imagine an ex-Socialist running for the presidency of the United States!

He'd be a super-interesting candidate, to be sure. And if he ever got into the White House—oh, my! But "Phooey!"—Fiorello himself has remarked of all the Republican possibilities who have been mentioned. As a radical, he can't stomach any of THEM.

He likewise recognizes that he's too close to his Italian ancestry (only one degree removed) to figure presidentially in this country. And his first name, Fiorello ("Little Flower"), he has admitted to me, would be a fatal handicap. It isn't so much dwell on now, but it would be dug up, with devastating results, he once assured me, in the event of a major campaign.

Fiorello was a rip-snorting aviator during the World War.

"I never," he told me, while he was a member of Congress, "went up in a plane that I wasn't scared to death."

"I guess I ain't much of a hero."

The Human Side Of The News

(By EDWIN C. HILL)

Copyright 1939 King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Once upon a time two great nations who ruled the world renounced forever war as an instrument of policy. They made a treaty to put an end to all wars. The treaty was called the League of Nations. And the League of Nations was the first time that the world had ever seen a treaty that was not broken.

This cut-back to thirty-two centuries before the Bland-Kellogg peace pact is suggested by the new story of the thrilling discoveries of the University of Chicago expedition, in its excavations near the town of the ancient Hittite city of Ras-el-Ain, in Syria.

The above peace treaty between the Hittites and the Egyptians is a previous discovery, and was a spur to these continuing efforts to uncover the story of power politics between the years 2000 and 1500 B. C.

Discoveries to date are enlightening and just a bit disturbing in their reminder that the world of 3000 years ago was, in its political aspects, pretty much like that of today. Human nature hasn't changed much. The onward march to the "parliament of mankind" seems to need a grand marshal.

The Hittites, lodging in our minds today only in a few Scriptural allusions, ruled a vast domain and held the Egyptians to a standstill in the outreach for "Lebanon." Around the year 1200 they were both hanging on the ropes and decided to be friends. Here's the first recorded Kellogg pact in history, as concluded between Ramesses, the Egyptian and Hattushilish, the Hittite.

"There shall be no hostilities between them forever. The great chief of the Hittites shall not pass over into the land of Egypt, forever, to take anything therefrom; Ramesses, the great chief of Egypt, shall not pass over into the land of the Hittites, to take anything therefrom."

"If another people (or state) shall come as an enemy against the land of Ramesses, the great chief of Egypt, and he shall send to the great chief of the Hittites, saying, 'Come with me with your army against him,' the great chief of the Hittites shall come, and the great King of the great King of the Hittites shall slay his enemy."

"But if it shall not be the desire of the great chief of the Hittites to come, he shall send his infantry and his chariots, and shall slay his enemy. Or, if Ramesses, the great chief of Egypt, be provoked against delinquent subjects, when they have committed some other fault against him, and he shall come to slay them, then the great chief of the Hittite shall act with the lord of Egypt."

You will find the above text of the treaty, in a scholarly historical context, in the book, "International Politics," by Frederick L. Schuman, Professor of Political Science at Williams College. You will find a wider historical backdrop in an article by Langdon and Gardner in the Journal of Egyptian Archaeology. The two nations bolstered their treaty with royal matrimonial alliances. Their peace held for a few decades, but, in effect, it was an alliance against weaker states, which the two ruling powers jointly crushed. The Hittite empire was wrecked by swarms of savage tribesmen from the West. Steady aggression from the Libyan desert pulled Egypt down until it became a mere also-ran among rising Asiatic empires.

The University of Chicago expedition will read in the ruins of Ras-el-Ain the unending destruction of the political state by the military state. They will read the story of competing imperialisms, and in the

If you meet a woman on the street, at a concert or dance wearing the same model dress as yours, it is not good manners to glare at her. ## World Famed Pianist Plays Here Tonight

At seventy eight years old one might expect that a rocker and a pipe would be as strenuous a life as the average man might expect to follow. After all, seventy eight is eight years past the Biblical three score and ten.

It's the unusual man who follows his profession or business at seventy eight, but Moriz Rosenthal, world famed pianist is an unusual man. At seventy eight he is completing a tour of the United States in a concert series and tonight he plays in the George Washington Junior High school auditorium as the third concert of the Metropolitan Concert Guild.

We're taking his word, for the 78 years for he doesn't look near it. Rugged as a blacksmith, interesting as a best seller and as picturesque as a mountain side he is still amazing audiences with his skill.

Sitting in the Castleton Hotel Monday afternoon he reminisced over some of his past years. "At seven I first took up the study of pianoforte," said he. "At ten, in the little town of Lemberg, Poland, I gave my first public recital. Then came years of hard work and study. For five years I studied with Franz Liszt, in Weimar, Germany. Then I accompanied him to Rome. Later, I entered the university in Vienna where I studied philosophy, Greek, Latin and other academic subjects.

"Since then the world has been my field. Fifty years ago I made my American debut. Europe, the Orient, South America, all of them I have toured but I always avoided the hotter countries when I could. I don't like heat."

What does he think of the present plight of Poland? "They were not prepared," said he. "They were not in shape to withstand a blitzkrieg and they had to yield. But they will be back again as an inde-

The Yankees are our favorite Hittites and three big-league ball-players have come from Cairo, Ill. One can't help having a keen academic interest in what the University of Chicago digs up in Syria, but the spring training season will start soon and we'll be occupied with more urgent and timely matters. Maybe we're smug about it, but there doesn't seem to be much nourishment for us in this empire league.

One thing sticks out like a sore thumb. The little states were always tossed to the wolves, and in time the big states beamed themselves with graft and taxes. As the old song goes: "In the days of old Ramesses that story had pangs." We still have a chance to make other arrangements.

CMTC Applications May Be Obtained

Limited Supply Available For Young Men To Attend Camp In July

Applications for young men desiring to enter the Citizens Military Training Camps from July 5 to August 3 are available in a limited number just now it was said today by Major W. Fulton Jackson, chairman of the committee for Lawrence County.

The CMTC camp has proved to be popular with young men all over the entire country and each year sees many more applicants than can be accommodated. Camps are located at Fort G. G. Meade, Maryland; Fort Hoyle, Md.; Fort Belvoir, Va.; Fort Monroe, Va.; and Fort Howard, Md. Infantry, cavalry, artillery, signal corps and coast artillery are listed among the courses. Employees traveling to and from city employment, and who, during the journey are injured, are not entitled to the benefits of compensation, according to an opinion given by Solicitor William G. Coburn to council which met Monday in city hall.

The opinion was rendered as the result of Councilman W. H. Dunlap's request. He said two employees were injured one while journeying home and the other while enroute to city work.

Following the reading of the opinion Dunlap said:

She gave a stirring address, on "Peace—Good Will" and related the steps taken toward this goal, demonstrating a profound interest in organized efforts of women and men to build a better world community, the spurring motive of every peace loving citizen.

A brilliant student of international relations, a lawyer and anti-war crusader, Miss Schain considered proposals for lessening friction in the universe in her address. She stressed neutrality and economic cooperation and pointed out the seriousness of the present world situation.

She emphasized the importance of continued meetings of groups of intelligent men and women throughout the nation for the purpose of taking steps to re-establish trade and normalcy in order to gain control of things for the sake of peace, before they get to the war basis.

Miss Schain is chairman of the National Committee of the Cause and Cure of War, a cooperative enterprise of eleven national Women's organizations.

During her stay in this vicinity, Miss Schain has been the house guest of Mrs. William Cosel, a personal friend and chum, who introduced her last night. At this time, Mrs. Cosel briefly told the purpose of the five organizations who sponsored Miss Schain's visit in New Castle, and presented their dealers and representatives who shared earlier in receiving line. They are: Temple Israel Sisterhood, Mrs. David Silverman, Tifereth Israel Sisterhood, Mrs. H. Pinoff, Jewish Ladies Relief, Mrs. Jack Leiby, New Castle Section Council of Jewish Women; Mrs. I. Grossman, New Castle Chapter of Hadassah, Mrs. L. Kohn. The goal of each group, is that of Israel's Mission—Peace, which was left impressed upon minds of the assemblage, as the closing thought.

Interest Being Shown In Bocce League In Ward

Persons May Join League By Registering At Columbus Society Hall

Considerable interest is being shown in the Bocce league now being formed in the Seventh Ward, under the sponsorship of the Christopher Columbus society.

Louis Ezzo, president of the society, is serving as chairman for the league, and he stated today that quite a few persons have already registered for the league.

Nick Cangey, vice president of the society, is assistant general chairman.

Any person who wishes to join the league may do so by registering at the Columbus Society hall, South Liberty street, before March 15. Bocce is an ancient Italian game, modernized when brought to this country.

The game is quite fascinating, and a lively program is being worked out for the league this coming season.

Alvan H. Fisher In Assembly Race

Second Ward Attorney Files For Republican Nomination From New Castle

ALVAN H. FISHER

Alvan H. Fisher of the Second Ward announces his candidacy for the Republican nomination for the General Assembly of the First District of Lawrence County, comprised of the City of New Castle. His announcement is as follows:

Taxation without representation once caused a war. To be taxed unmercifully today and your money spent before the needs of good government are satisfied, is an unwarranted dissipation of public funds. Your tax dollar may be diminished by one-half if the necessary drag of bureaucrats is not cleaned from the threshold of the tax collection system in this Commonwealth. The elimination of double assessments due to separate City and County plans, together with the multiple tax collection agencies, with the attendant inconvenience in paying taxes, would save as much as 30% of your tax dollar. The waste in our State Government must stop to achieve any measure of prosperity.

I was admitted to the Bar in 1937 and since that time have been actively engaged in the practice of law in this City. Today as never before we need more simplicity and economy in the administration of government. The Legislature is the voice of the people. The next Assemblyman from New Castle should be a man who is not hamstrung by political affiliations or promises, who has a sufficient knowledge of government to know what he is doing and who has the courage to fight for the abolition of multiple taxes, fat salaries for administrative offices and a reduction of the State's annual expenditures.

I respectfully solicit your vote for the Republican Nomination on April 23rd.

REFUSE FINNISH PLEA

(International News Service)

BOULDER, Colo.—Refusal of the Associated Students of the University of Colorado, leading student body organization, to support the Finnish Relief Fund drive, won the sanction and praise of Robert L. Stearns, president of the university. President Stearns ordered contribution boxes for the fund removed from campus buildings after the association announced it believed the slogan "help save Democracy by helping Finland" to be merely a repetition of the "glittering propaganda offered America in the last war."

Archduke Will Study Democracy In United States

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, March 5.—Archduke Otto Von Hapsburg, 27-year-old claimant of the now non-existent throne of Austro-Hungary, set out today to see how democracy works. After conclusion of the war, said the affable pretender to the throne, the states of Central Europe will be forced to unite into a federated union modeled on the union of the 48 states. For this reason, he explained, it was his desire to learn more of American politics, farming and industry.

Otto arrived in New York by plane last night from Baltimore where he landed yesterday in the clipper from Lisbon.

Pittsburgh Rivers Below Flood Stage

Some Miniature Flood Conditions Are Reported In District

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, March 5.—A light snow covered the Pittsburgh area with a mantle of white today in the wake of miniature floods of a localized nature that tied-up highway traffic in some places in the tri-state area.

River stages, however, were not expected to reach the danger point, according to government forecasts, and the current crests which brought about inundation of low-land areas, moved down stream. The Allegheny was expected to climb another foot, while the Monongahela was expected to go two feet higher, bringing a maximum of 18-feet at the "Point," still seven feet below flood stage.

A heavy snow was reported in up-state areas, especially between Indiana and DuBois.

Several slides were reported in Washington county and motorists were warned to proceed with caution. The worst slide in that area near Scenery Hill, was opened to two-way motor traffic early last evening.

Another slide near Follansbee, W. Va., completely blocked the road between Wheeling and Weirton, according to local reports.

Dr. Dafoe's Column On The Quintuplets And The Care Of Your Children

A LETTER FOR THE QUINS

I got many letters from all over the country telling me of the influence of the quintuplets, but I got one couple of weeks ago from the Ursuline academy in Pittsburgh, Pa., that affected me as much as any letter I've read in a long, long time.

It was written by 12 children in the third grade in that school—ten girls and two boys—and it told how these children had scraped and saved their pennies until they had raised enough money to ransom five pagan babies in Tanganyika, Africa, and how these five babies are being named after the quintuplets.

The letter was sent me by Sister M. de Chantal of the academy. She had a few words to say about how the children of the third grade were so interested in the quins and how this interest had spurred them to buy from slavery, five little children. I think you may find the children's letter as interesting as I did. It is done in pencil in a very round, childish hand:

"Dear Dionne Quintuplets:
"We are not writing you a long letter. We are just writing to tell you that our class saved up $25 from September 1938 to May 1939 to buy five black mission babies. We named them Cecile, Annette, Yvonne, Marie and Emilie after you. "We also saved five thousand stamps and several pounds of tin foil for the mission. We sent some money for lolly pops and rattles for the 'quins'. These babies are poor and so we sent them these things. "We thought you would be glad to know we bought five black, baby girls and named them after you. We hope you are well.

"Yours truly, Third Grade—Nancy Harper, Norma Jean McKearns, Mary Gertrude McFarland, Joan Nelson, Betty Ann Pfohl, Jeanne Mannelia, Mary Louise Boch, Mary Jane Brady, Paul Buechel, Kathleen Craig, Victor De Leonardo, Mary Audrey Edwards."

I will do my best to explain to the quintuplets just what this letter means, but I don't know how successful I'll be. For one thing, I don't think they will understand just what ransoming children in Africa will mean. In fact I'm not sure I realize altogether what it means myself.

It may be that the best thing to do will be tell them about it again. I am sure when they can understand more about the meaning of it all they will get a great deal of satisfaction out of knowing that they may have helped make five other children happy. If it is many thousands of miles away in Africa, I know it gave me quite a thrill when I read what those children in the third grade of the Ursuline academy in Pittsburgh were doing.

I have always felt that if the survival of the quintuplets under the handicaps they found themselves at birth had any significance, it was to bring home to parents the right of every child to every chance in life. It really makes no difference whether those children live in Canada, in the United States or in Tanganyika.

Federal Income Tax In Nutshell

Deduction For Losses Other Than From Sale Or Exchange Of Capital Assets.

Deduction for losses are divided into four classes, and to be allowed must follow closely the wording of the income-tax law. Losses are deductible if incurred (1) in the taxpayer's trade, business, or profession; (2) in any transaction entered into for profit; (3) from fires, storms, shipwreck, or other casualties; or from theft; and (4) from wagering transactions.

Business losses result, usually, from the purchase and sale of merchandise. Such losses usually are ascertained by means of inventories, which are required whenever in the opinion of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue their use is necessary to determine the income of any taxpayer.

The term "transaction entered into for profit" means any kind of business proposition. For example, a taxpayer purchased an automobile to be used solely for business purposes, and which is sold at a loss. As this is a business proposition from start to finish, the loss is deductible, subject to the limitations of section 117 as amended. But if he had purchased the automobile to be used for pleasure or convenience, the deduction would not be allowed; it was not a transaction entered into for profit.

A loss sustained in the theft of an automobile purchased for pleasure or convenience is deductible, as it falls in class 3. If, because of faulty driving but not of "willful negligence," an automobile maintained for pleasure is damaged, the taxpayer may claim the loss sustained, as it comes within the meaning of the word "casualty." Where damages result from the faulty driving of an automobile with which the automobile of the taxpayer collided, the loss occasioned the taxpayer likewise is deductible.

Losses from wagering transactions, whether legal or illegal, are deductible only to the extent of gains from such transactions. The excess of such losses over the gains is not deductible.

All losses are deductible only to the extent to which they are not compensated for by insurance or otherwise. Deductible capital losses are further subject to the limitations of section 117, as amended.

DAILY DOZEN

(From the Medical Society of the State of Pennsylvania)

What now, little man? He has no appetite, he is forever tired, he is unhappy.

He is only 9 years old and doesn't know what ails him.

He is overworked, overtrained, over-tired.

His mother has crowded his days with too much to do.

Besides school, he has music and dancing lessons.

He has also been entered in a children's acting group.

He is suffering from fatigue and has no time for play.

Such fatigue sometimes gains headway before it is recognized. Extra activities should not be added at the expense of health.

Rest is what many children need, not more business.

"Bags" under children's eyes are very unbecoming.

The STRANGE CASE OF THE INTERRUPTED CALL

1 It was about 10 o'clock one blustery, wet morning in March. Mrs. M. . . took one look at the weather and decided to order her groceries by telephone. As she was about to dial the grocer's number, her telephone rang.

2 A strange voice came over the line. "Hello," it said, "this is a telephone repairman. I'm outside your house, about to do some work on your line. That is, if it won't inconvenience you. I'll be through in a jiffy."

3 "That's all right. But I didn't report any trouble on my line!" exclaimed Mrs. M. . . "In fact, there's nothing wrong with it that I know of. So how did you know it needed repairs?"

4 "Oh, that's easy, Mrs. M. . ." laughed the repairman. "We were making a routine test on your line and we found a condition which might not bother you now, but might interfere with your service later. So we're fixing the trouble before it troubles you."

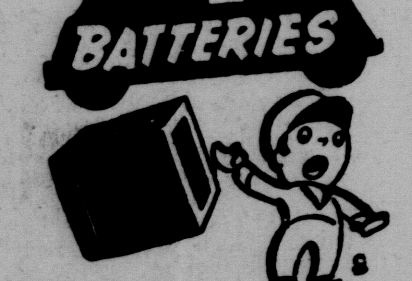

5 "My goodness! said Mrs. M. . . "I don't see how you can discover trouble before it happens. It seems impossible!"
"Well, lady," answered the lineman. "It isn't so hard when you have the right kind of testing equipment at the central office and people who know how to use it."

6 Here's the apparatus which makes such magic possible. It's an electrical testing machine, and it's extremely sensitive. With it a trained tester can not only detect wire trouble miles away, but tell what the trouble is and exactly where it is. A regular electrical Sherlock Holmes!

● The use of such equipment saves us a great deal of time, trouble and expense, of course. But of even greater importance is the fact that it helps us keep your telephone service more and more free from imperfections and delays—ready to run your errands, to help with your shopping, to make life easier and more enjoyable. This is one of the many things we do to keep the quality of telephone service up—and the cost of the service down. Number please!

Grand Jury Has Brief Session

Complete Cases And Inspection Work In Little Over One Day

FEW CRIMINAL CASES IN COURT

One of the shortest sessions of grand jury in the history of Lawrence County finished this afternoon with the jury inspecting the county properties. The consideration of indictments was finished on Monday, probably the shortest list of indictments ever handed up to a grand jury in forty years. This came about through the large number of pleas secured by District Attorney John G. Lamoree.

Actually there are but seven defendants listed in the indictments, who will be up for trial next week. The number of indictments is fourteen but three of these were made against defendants who are out of the county, but were made to bar the statute of limitations running out. Several other defendants had more than one indictment placed against them. The list follows. All cases have the commonwealth as the plaintiff but the prosecutors may be either individuals or officers.

Donald Kromer, moral charge, prosecutor Anna Kovacs. A true bill. Robert Seavy, four indictments charging forgery and uttering fraudulent checks. Prosecutor M. J. Young. A true bill.

Harry Francis Johnson, robbery, larceny, receiving stolen goods and assault and battery. Prosecutor, Paul A. Welsh. A true bill.

The three cases listed above are the ones returned to bar to statute of limitations.

Joseph A. Fusco, indecent exposure. Prosecutor M. J. Young. A true bill.

Peter Kotube, failure to stop, failure to disclose identity and failure to render assistance. Prosecutor W. C. Morrison. A true bill.

James Williams, driving while under the influence of intoxicating liquor. Prosecutor W. C. Morrison, a true bill.

John Campbell, setting up and maintaining a lottery, concerned in managing a lottery, selling or auctioning to be sold evidence of slips and lottery. Prosecutor Phil Murray. Not a true bill on all counts save the last one which is a true bill.

John C. Micco, maintaining gambling apparatus. Prosecutor Paul A. Welsh. A true bill.

Ailey Durgam and Albert T. Klam, having liquor on premises licensed for malt or brewed beverages. Prosecutor Jack Harris. A true bill.

Carl Majors, Mayhem and aggravated assault and battery. Prosecutor W. C. Morrison. A true bill.

Indications are that the week of criminal court will finish by next Wednesday March 13. If this is true and it appears that it will be, the jury called for the second week of criminal court will not be needed.

Refugee Physician Offers Services

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, March 5.—A refugee physician driven into exile by the Nazis today offered his services to Karl Wehrman, an 11 year old American boy from Juneau, Wis., who went to Germany for a delicate eye operation that could not be performed because of the war.

Karl returned alone from Germany through funds supplied by the Lions club of Juneau after his return ticket was rendered invalid because of the disruption of German shipping by the war.

The operation was scheduled for September 15. But the war broke out before and Karl's doctor was called into military duty.

Dr. Max Goldschmidt, once a famous professor at Leipzig, offered to treat the boy.

Rev. T. B. Shearer Conducts Service

Dr. G. S. Bennett Taken Ill While Eating Evening Meal On Monday

Rev. T. B. Shearer, pastor of the Central Christian church, did a fine job on the spur of the moment, Monday night, when he delivered a fine sermon at the evangelistic meeting in the First Christian church.

Dr. G. S. Bennett, pastor of the First church, who was to deliver the sermon, was suddenly taken ill while eating his evening meal on Monday, and was unable to leave his home last night.

According to reports today, Dr. Bennett is somewhat improved, but it is not certain as to whether he will be able to take charge of the services tonight.

The evangelistic services began Sunday morning, and will continue each night for three weeks.

President's Ball Profits Reported

With $298.40 Already In, Leaders Expect Additional Boost

New Castle's President's ball last January 30 raised $298.40 for the combined national and local battle against infantile paralysis. John S. Huffner, county chairman, and Presley N. ## Developing Sketch Of "Portable Pool," Rotarians Are Told

Hope Project Can Be Carried Out Along Neshannock
This Summer

New Castle youngsters next summer may get a chance to splash around in a "portable swimming pool" in Neshannock creek, the Rotary club learned Monday from a club committee which concerns itself with matters of municipal recreation.

Drawings for a low-cost gate-type dam which could easily be removed and installed again in the creek at a point near the bottom of Rural avenue hill are now in preparation in a local engineer's office.

The dam proposal will be formally brought to the attention of city officials once the plans are ready, it was said.

All of Rotary's committees reported at the regular March business meeting in The Castleton. President Fred L. Taylor presided.

Yesterday brought the start of a new attendance contest with Blair Alverson and Virdyn R. Caldwell as team heads. A former Clarkburg, W. Va. Rotarian, William E. "Bus" St. Clair, now located here, was inducted into the local membership. He is with Remington Rand, Inc.

Out of respect for the late William K. Huges, long-time Rotarian and distinguished citizen for years, the clubmen stood and bowed their heads in silence for a moment before the meeting closed. Huges died last week.

Justice in the dark might have been the title of the scene in court room number one Monday morning. The court was on the bench, the grand jury was in the body of the court room but the lights were off. Something had gone haywire with the lights for number one and the jury was moved over to number two where the court charged them.

After working the week-end, the old floor in the front office of the prothonotary's office is ripped out and the metal lath laid for the concrete which will be poured. It will be several days before the work is completed sufficiently to lay the floor covering and replace the wall cases for the dockets.

At the present time the dockets are filed on the floor of the new office, rows of them.

As usual, there was a rush of last minute candidates filing for county committee places Monday afternoon and William A. Eakin, county commissioners' chief clerk was busier than the proverbial one armed paper hanger with the hives.

Many districts in the county have no candidates for county committee. This probably means a lot of silly voting in the various precincts with the attending headache for the election boards. On the other hand a number of precincts have fights on for committee places.

Continuing the compilation of general fund expenditures for February you will find that the prothonotary's office cost for the month was $1712.30 divided as follows: salary of prothonotary $332; salaries of deputies and clerks, $605; dockets $184.02; printing and postage $96.45; bond $483.08 and a few other incidental costs.

Public Affairs Are Studied By Y.W.C.A. Group

Meetings Of Group Open To Public; Next Meeting Thursday of This Week

For the March meeting, next Thursday, the public affairs committee of the Y. W. C. A. is sponsoring the report of Mrs. Catherine Charles on the Cause and Cure of War Council held in Washington in January. The meeting will be open to anyone interested.

The public affairs committee meets regularly on the third Thursday of the month in the Y. W. C. A. and all of the meetings are open to anyone who wishes to attend.

Miss Alice Sterling describes it as a study book, guided but not regulated by the national committee of the Y. W. C. A. It is composed of board members, the general secretary, two representatives from each of the Y. W. C. A. clubs, down to the youngest Girl Reserves. This group studies international relations, social legislation, economic affairs, youth problems and education, and minority groups, each member reporting on a topic previously assigned to her with material for study. Under international relations, studies were made of United States neutrality this season, and of the book, "Union Now", by Clarence Streit. Under minority groups a local survey of the Negro race was made at the request of the national board, to which the findings of the survey were reported. With the approval of the Y. W. C. A. board the public affairs committee has at times written the senators and representatives in regard to pending legislation to ask for action. One such project was in regard to anti-lunch legislation.

Point Marion High Is Versatile Team

"Greyhounds" Face Tough Hombre In Semi-Final Roundup, Thursday

POINTERS PLAY PERCENTAGE BALL

Two highly-gearred aggregations—New Wilmington and Point Marion—match basketball technique in the WPIAL Class B tourney semi-final roundup Thursday night in Pitt Stadium.

Jointly, the championship-minded schoolboys have hit the laces for close to 1,400 points this season. In Western Pennsylvania hoop circles, the "Greyhounds" and "Pointers" rank as two of the hottest offensive clubs. Each team employs a different slant in potting field goals.

Percentage Basketball

Point Marion, a Fayette County entry which toppled Dunbar and Etina in the current tourney, plays percentage basketball. In other words, keep pumping away at the hoops, a certain percent of the shots are bound to drop through the cords. The system has paid rewards in 19 out of 20 clashes. The "Pointers" seldom score less than 40 points.

The college tower on the other hand, favor a more conservative style of basketball. New Wilmington constantly whips around the sphere, getting the opponents out of position. With an opening present, the Section 20 titlists immediately zip the ball to a mate filling in the empty space. An open shot near the hoop is usually the result. The locals also rely on the "pivot play," with Paul Minner occupying the center.

Defensively, Point Marion used a combination man-for-man and the successful zone style. Around mid-court, the Pointers stick to the man-for-man setup, shifting immediately when the opponents approach scoring territory. Point Marion has developed its combination to a degree that borders close to perfection.

Locals Use Zone

New Wilmington favors the zone offense. To date, the locals have checked 22 consecutive opponents. Defensively, the miniature Titans have yielded 30 or more points to only two aggregations. The remaining foes passed the 20 mark and stopped Hickory and East Brook were limited to 19 points between them.

On top of all this, the rivals have speed, stamina and cunning, assuring fans of one of the most thrilling contests in several years. Officials of the tourney figure that the winner of this clash will likely cop the coveted banner.

Coach Eagleson is sending his hoopers through a foul shooting drill this afternoon. New Wilmington was far off at the charity mark in the West Newton fray, converting but five tries. Following a light workout tomorrow afternoon, the Section 20 champs will rest until game time.

Point Marion and New Wilmington will meet in the caboose end of a double-bill. The game should start at about 9 o'clock.

Trading Is Sluggish And Price Changes Are Rather Limited

By LESLIE GOULD
International News Service
Financial Writer.
NEW YORK, March 5.—The stock market today made it two straight on the upside, but trading continued extremely sluggish and most price changes were limited to fractional proportions.

Prices were higher from the opening. After chalking up their modest initial gains, leaders were unable to make further progress on the upside, due to the absence of any appreciable amount of new buying. Several issues, including a few utilities, were backward.

B. M. T. common enjoyed a runup of almost a point in the second hour, crossing 21 to a new high. The deposited preferred climbed a point, but the undeposited preferred and most other traction issues were easier.

Steels, including Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet and Tube and U. S. Steel, duplicated their fractional gains of yesterday. Most copper and aviation issues were improved. General Motors advanced moderately but Chrysler showed little change.

North American and United Gas Improvement slipped to new lows as other utilities pointed higher. Oil, rails and mail orders were mixed.

Commodities were featured by a runup of a cent a bushel in wheat, while cotton added a few points to last night's closing levels. Bonds were quiet. Foreign markets displayed a steady tone.

A statement of the approximate number of ballots for each district for each party to be printed, and the subject matter to be printed thereon, and the general arrangement of the ballot may be seen at the office of the County Commissioners. Proof of each form of ballot shall be submitted to the County Commissioners for approval before any ballot shall be finally printed.

The County Commissioners reserve the right to reject any and/or all bids.

Roman Catholic Men Assemble

"Open House" Sponsored By Local Knights Of Columbus Order Is Great Success

FATHER JANOK
GUEST SPEAKER

Good will and the spirit of friendliness was evident Monday evening at the "open house" gathering sponsored by the local Knights of Columbus order, reuniting again approximately 250 Catholic men from parishes of the Roman Catholic churches of this city. The event was held in the K. of C. Home, North Jefferson street.

Bernard N. Hanlon, grand knight of the local organization as master of ceremonies introduced the evening's speakers and demonstrators.
Chris Clark, of the Bell Telephone Company gave a very interesting talk and demonstrated the development of the telephone since its invention up to the present time.

The main speaker was The Rev.
Joseph E. Janok, popular young pastor of St. Michael's church, who addressed the group on the "Catholic Youth Movement." Father Janok stressed the point that the Knights of Columbus order was organized for Catholic action and Catholic life, and that the word "Knights" stands for valorous men and "Columbus" discovers Catholics, who overcome handicaps and hardships through their faith in Christ. Father Janok emphasized the fact that the organization is not only parochial, but inter-parochial, not only national, but international and not only natural, but super-natural. His talk proved interesting and was well received by all.

A musical program was presented with Jack Carlin, pianist, favoring with selections. Other instrumental selections were given by Steve Griffith and Jack McCullough. Sports exhibitions of boxing bouts, were given later with Frankie Moran,
Billy Dean, Willie Baxter, Johnny
Dean and Mickey Rubin participating. James P. Steiner and George
Chip were referees.

In closing, a buffet lunch was served by the committee in charge, and another event was marked as a great success, due to the untiring work of the chairmen and their committees.

Honored guests included Rev. Fr.
V. V. Stanczewski of the SS. Philip and James' church, Rev. Fr. Leo S.
Waterson, of St. Mary's church and
Rev. Fr. Joseph E. Janok, of St.
Michael's church.
